

Week Gone/Week Ahead - 15th May 2020 Centre Academy London

Dear Parents/Carers, Students and Staff,
Next week is the last week of this half term, and at least we are entering it with some reasonably bright weather and, indeed, the sound of birdsong which is more evident across London as traffic reduces. I know that for some of you the time will be flying; for others, it may be moving more slowly—and for parents, perhaps even dragging! In any case, I am grateful for the support and hard work that everyone in the CA London family is putting in—our students, of course, but also our wonderfully dedicated teachers, our parents, our carers, extended families, and even siblings. Well done to you all.

You will recall that last week I included some pictures of work being done here by those students who are in school. For next week's newsletter, I would like to include some work from our Learning from Home students. Please, please, please send through some images!

I know there is much in the press about Primary Schools reopening on 1 June; however, as you will know, the national picture remains cloudy. What however is now clearer is that our usual end-of-term activities such as the Science Fair and the Art Fair will unfortunately not take place. As you will understand, all of us at CAL regret this—another chapter in the Book of Adversity!

While the majority of the Government's most recent plans do not impact on our cohort at CAL, rest assure that we will continue to monitor all developments and consider options as they may apply to the school. To this end, I will be sending out a new survey over the next week or so in order that our parent and carer views can feed into any wider decisions.

Enjoy the birdsong and the weekend,
Miss Maddison
